DIRECTOR OF DRAMATICS

The Roxbury Latin School seeks to appoint a full-time teacher who will serve as Director of Dramatics. Starting in August 2012, the successful candidate will teach line courses in the English, History, Classics, or Mathematics departments, as well as an elective in the Arts Department. He or she will assume primary responsibility for the School's drama program, which currently stages four productions a year: the senior play (for students in grades 10-12), the junior play (for students in grades 7-9), a spring musical (in conjunction with The Winsor School), and a student-directed production. The successful candidate will normally direct two of these.

Located in the West Roxbury neighborhood of Boston, Roxbury Latin is an independent day school for 290 boys in grades 7-12. Founded in 1645, the School offers a rigorous classical education to a student body noted for its academic ability as well as its diversity. Roxbury Latin is an equal opportunity employer and offers top salaries and benefits. The School especially encourages applications from women and candidates of color. Qualified applicants should send a letter of interest and a resume via email to phil.kokotailo@roxburylatin.org or by conventional post to Dr. Philip Kokotailo, Dean of Faculty, The Roxbury Latin School, 101 St. Theresa Avenue, West Roxbury, Massachusetts 02132.
